Feed the Birds

It's a messy old business, making bird food, but a lot of fun! We liked squishing the fat between our fingers and mixing in all the seeds. We squashed the tasty treats into yoghurt pots and hung them in the trees, so the birds can have some nourishing food to eat. We have already seen a robin helping themselves.

To help us learn to recognise birds, we've been doing some drawings too. We used information books and fact files to help us. What do you think of our amazing artwork?

We made sure we kept track of all the birds we have seen in our gardens so we can report back to the RSPB as part of the Big Schools' Birdwatch.

As usual, there's been plenty of innovation and teamwork it comes to being creative. Take a look at where our ideas have taken us this week.

As well as all that we found time to help build a path and set up the wildlife camera to see if we can capture the blue tits we think might be nesting in one of our boxes. Wouldn't that be exciting?
